Preschool Quality Improvement Plan Summary

Hallett Cove South

Goals	Challenge of Practice	Success Criteria
That children are increasingly able to recognise, collect, sort and represent data in their world.	If educators intentionally plan for and provide opportunities for children to recognise, collect, sort and represent data in their daily world, then children will be able to use data to make decisions.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Children will increasingly be able to collect, sort and classify information, objects and events. Children will contribute to jointly constructed data displays to support answering questions or problem solving.
To support children to develop the disposition of curiosity, and the capacity to express their ideas and thinking to extend their own understandings.	If we improve all educators' understanding of and ability to implement an inquiry approach to teaching and learning, then children will be supported to develop a disposition of curiosity, and the capacity to express their ideas and thinking to extend their own understandings.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Children will actively participate in inquiry-based learning experiences Children will build their learning dispositions. e.g., being curious, taking an interest, investigating, exploring, asking questions Children will express their ideas and thinking in various ways (e.g., verbally, drawing, writing)
